$50,000 OPTION EXTENDED.

Hands Shortly.

Notwithstanding a denial from the Park Record over the news relating to the bonding of the New York group of claims in Park City a few weeks ago to Colorado parties. Charles McFalls, one of the chief owners of the property, yesterday acknowledged that The Herald's account of the transaction was substantially correct. An option had been given and the amount named, $50,600, was the price at which he and his amoughate owners had agreed to surrender the mine. The option was obtained for thirty days only, and vesterday a representative of the prospective purchasers went to the Park and succeeded in securing a thirty days extension of time. That the deal will be closed early in January appears to be almost certain, for the property involved is unquestionably very valuable.

When J. D. Woodrust returned from a trip to the Burr mine, near Lewiston, Wyo, a few days ago, he brought along with him some the samples of gold ore. Judging from the appearance of the took, which was one exhibition at the Pexter offices, yesterday, the gold is scattered through a binek quarty, and is said to resemble closely the orestought in the celebrated Mt. Morgan mine of Australia. The Burr mine has been worked for some time. A sample of the ore was taken to the World's fair at Chicago in 1895, and was awarded. Her prize for the richest gold over E. H.
